

A Message of Support from ASPPB, the National Register, The Trust and ABPP

March 19, 2020

Dear Colleagues,

As psychologists who lead ASPPB, the National Register, The Trust and ABPP, we have come together to help you by improving your access to valuable resources. Each of our constituencies may have differing levels of need and/or differing issues. Our goal is to facilitate your finding information you need across organizations.

We have linked our sites, making it easier for you to go from one site to the other to find what we each offer. We know it can be difficult to find reliable information quickly and easily, and information does change rapidly. We are focusing on core resources such as template forms, relevant trainings, information about state regulations for telehealth, tips for using telepsychology, and more.

Where we can, we will provide resources directly; in other cases, we will provide links. We are harnessing the best experts among us to develop and collect more resources for you. Our efforts will be fluid, with information added as soon as it is available. To be timely and valuable, our goal is not comprehensiveness, but, rather, immediate utility and easier accessibility.

Our website addresses are in our signature lines, but for your convenience, here are the direct links to our resource pages for our organizations:

ASPPB: <https://www.asppb.net/page/covid19>

National Register: <https://www.nationalregister.org/coronavirus-resources>

The Trust: <https://parma.trustinsurance.com/Resource-Center/COVID-19-Resources>

ABPP: <https://abpp.org/News-Events/In-the-News/COVID-19-Updates-Resources.aspx>

We have been inspired by witnessing how you have reached out to help each other sharing information. There are many individuals, groups, and associations who also are providing useful information. We encourage you to continue to share resources, and we will do our best to be a trusted and united resource and support for you.

Warm Regards,

Mariann, Jana, Morgan and David
